

Get the singleton instance of ProfileContainer and UI and save off to a file scoped variable for future use, as these classes are used often.

By registering a callback the UI, I am able to keep the front-end (UI) decoupled from the back-end.

Loop through all profiles add them to the list, one by one.

Constructing the CookieProfileContainer causes it to go out, locate all the CookieProfiles, and determine which profile is active

